

My family has enjoyed public television for decades; my son grew up on Sesame Street for many years along with other educational programming. I personally enjoy the PBS New Hour and there many specials.

It is not only outrageous, but an affront to American families to allow tax exempt religious organizations, such as John Hagee and the Daystar Television Network, to dictate what is available for viewing by my family.

This is not Nazi Germany, this is America and I encourage American leaders to stand up against the bullying tactics of these organizations who themselves have scourged the innocent for too long.

As a Vietnam vet, with my son currently serving in the military; our service was to protect this country against all enemies, foreign and domestic. I encourage the FCC to stand up against this attack against children and families.

Respectfully,

Ike Waller
